THURSDAY, JAN 27 1927

U. S. Senate has asserted its constitutional right in deciding who shall be a member of that august body and it begins to look like all corporate interests will be carefully investigated before given the priviledges of the floor.

Land, tobacco, cotton, corn and wheat going down—So is the farmer. The demand now is that the tax ticket go down also Gentlemen supervisors begin now the study of your budget for 1927 taxes. With the present assessment higher than the land will bring on the market, a very low rate is in order.

Governor Byrd will have the Legislature on his hands again on March 16th. The indications are that he will have a well nigh perfected plan for the solons to peruse and a business session is expected. He is making an honest endeavor to redeem his campaign pledges to the people and practical, economical and statesmanship is expected of his message to the law makers.

Plant bed time is here and few of our farmers seem to have any desire to further waste time on dark tobacco. While it is true the crop now on sale is very inferior, but there is good tobacco enough to establish a low mark in the price—lower than pre-war prices. While the grades appear to do as well at Appomattox as elsewhere, it is said wrappers are not commanding the price prevailing weeks ago. Only what is called good working tobacco is bringing a fair price. If you have anything else to do, it appears the part of wisdom to eschew tobacco.

Mr. Tucker on Cruisers

The Staunton Leader published some days ago Mr. Tucker's assigned reason for voting against an appropriation for constructing the three cruisers which Congress authorized three years ago but for the construction of which Congress has not yet provided the money.

Mr. Tucker's reason is a perfectly good one, namely, that he could not see any sense in building three new cruisers with the possibility of scrapping them about the time they are completed or before they are completed under some new disarmament agreement. He cites that negotiations are in progress for calling another disarmament conference, and he thinks it better to wait results.

This conference does not seem very likely to be called, as several nations are putting obstructions in the way, and it is probably going to be impossible to get them together on it. That will be settled before a great while, and then if nothing is done America can proceed to build the cruisers if it wishes to build them.

Another reason for not building them is that if built in the present atmosphere it will be a challenge to England and Japan, on the theory that these countries have taken advantage of the disarmament agreement and proceeded to build a large number of vessels not specifically restricted under the agreement, in order to overbalance the United States in aggregate fleet power and efficiency. It is virtually accusing them of treachery, which is not acting in the spirit of a peace treaty. Would it not be better, and be more to the credit of the United States if it would take the matter up with the countries parties to the treaty, offer to tell them exactly what is the state of our fleet, ane request them to tell us frankly how they stand with relation to us? If we are to carry out a definite treaty as to fleets, manifestly how they stand with relation to us? If these countries are unwilling to compare notes with us, then we would be absolved from any charge of playing a shrewd game privately, and we might openly then proceed to put our fleet on a parity with the fleets of these countries according to the best lights before us. If we wish to be honest and work for peace, we must deal frankly in this matter. If they wish to be fair and square, they will deal with us in the same way.

Extra Session

After considering the matter Gov. Byrd has called a special session of the Legislature for March 16, 1927. The Governor says:

Briefly my reasons are as follows: My first reason is that many and important economies and reforms must await upon changes in the present constitution. The able Commission on Suggested Amendments to the Constitution, headed by the President of the Supreme Court, Judge Robert R. Prentis, have recommended to me the calling of a special session so that the necessary amendments to the Constitution can be considered and if approved by the General Assembly in this special session and by the General Assembly of 1928 a vote can be taken on such amendments in November, 1928, on the day of the Presidential election when a full and representative participation by the voters of all parties is assured. If the report on constitution changes is delayed until the regular session of 1928 the submission to the people will not occur until the November election in 1930. Two years will be lost in constitutional changes necessary for governmental efficiency and other needed reforms unless the special session is convened

My second reason for convening the General Assembly in special session is that the comprehensive and careful report of the Bureau of Municipal Research has furnished the very competent citizens committee, headed by Mr. William T. Reed, with information upon which to base a program for the consolidation and simplification of government, a program whose early enactment into law will mean a large saving in money and a gain in efficiency. This desirable end can be advanced ten months by an extra session. If conducted with a minimum of attendants the cost of the extra session should not exceed $45,000. The expense of our State government alone is $93,000,000 yearly; our combined state, city, county and township government cost is in excess of $90,000,000 annually. It is obvious that the expense of the special session may be saved many times. I am convinced that a substantial saving will be made with the advantage of a more efficient business structure.

In the crowded sixty days of the regular session of 1928 it is doubtful that the full economy program and the constitutional changes can receive consideration resulting perhaps either in the defeat of such measures or extending the 1923 session thirty days at nearly the same expense as convening a special session now.

I am assured by the Prentis Commission on constitutional changes and the Reed committee on efficiency and simplication that full reports will be available for public discussion approximately thirty days before March 16, 1927. Copies of these reports will be immediately printed for public distribution and the progressive press is ready to publish these reports in full and frankly discuss the changes that these commissions will recommend.

Constitutional amendments and economy and efficiency in government have been under discussion in Virginia for years. Many students of government affairs have already formed conclusions as to many changes needed. Both subjects were outstanding issues in my campaign and in the election of the present House of Delegates. Much was accomplished by the 1926 General Assembly. In additional to directly acting on many efficiency measures, this General Assembly appropriated a fund for a comprehensive business survey of state and county governments and created the Commission to consider amendments to the Constitution. It is appropriate for the present General Assembly to complete this program which means so much for the future of Virginia, so far as it may be possible.

Virginians, I believe, are in mood to consider and approve reforms that lie at the heart of her progress. The patriotic members of the General Assembly are ready to assemble notwithstanding their personal loss and inconvenience Virginia is on the threshold of a great development. The competition between States today is as keen as between rival business enterprises. A state must by sound progress and efficiency satisfy her own citizens and encourage them to stay within her borders. She must attract outside capital and desirable new residents to aid in her development. Virginia's opportunities are as full of hope and promise as any state in the Union. Our governtal house must be put in order and all barriers to progress removed so as to enable us to fully enjoy the opportunities that lie before us.

My action, I hope, will meet with the approval of the people of Virginia. It is my considered judgment prompted solely by my conception of the discharge of my duty for the good of our Commonwealth.

H. F. Byrd.

Quite a number of our farmers have been marketing tobacco some are satisfied with prices where others seem down-hearted.

We are sorry to report the illness of Mrs. John Harris. We trust that she may soon recover.

We are glad to learn that Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thornhill are out again after a spell of flu. Mr. John Beal is said to be improving.

Mr. Louis Harris is out again after a spell of flu.

Mr. Branch Harris is still on sick list.

It looks like old times to see so many mules and horses out on the public roads, and muddy as the roads are hauling, this seems to be the topic of the day.

Mr. Gourd preached a fine sermon at Maple Grove, Sunday p. m.

Mrs. W. W. Thornhill is on the sick list.

Hills of Appomattox

As the Farmer's Association has and some farmers have realized good prices for tobacco since the war started until 1926, and the bottom has dropped out of the dark tobacco market all over the state, forcing a goodly number of people to leave the farm the average price of dark tobacco has been cut one-half the price of 1925, wheat and corn also lower than for several years. It seems like every thing on the farm is on the down hill grade.

I would like see taxes reduced on real estate in proportion to what tobacco is selling for now. It will help farmers to reduce taxes on farm lard as much as any thing the county could do.

The farmer would like to hear what you town people have to say on the subject of lowering taxes.

With best regards,

U. D. C. Banquet

The Appomattox Chapter U. D. C. was most delightfully entertained the afternoon of January 20th in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Wagers. This being the day before the birthday of Jackson and the day after Lee's. The occasion took the form of a joint celebration honoring the memory of these great Southern heroes. The living room and dining room were suitably decorated in Confederate and U. S. flags with large portraits of Lee and Jackson; red and white flowers. Mrs. L. Crawley gave a reading "A Medley of Lee from Southern Poets," Mrs. E. T. Price followed with a letter, written by Lee. Rev. W. M. Thompson gave an inspiring and informing paper on "Stonewall Jackson." A contest was much enjoyed by the guests, "Jumbled words pertaining to Lee and Jackson." Miss Anna Jones, President of the local chapter won first prize. The guests found their places in the dining room, where delicious refreshments were served, carrying out the color scheme of red, white and blue by the means of place cards containing rhymes describing themselves. The favors were hand decorated booklets of "Lee."

ROY W. GUNTER

Roy W. Gunter, age 24 years, died Jan. 22, at his home near Liberty Chapel, the son of W. T. Gunter. He contracted T. B. after a prolonged spell of "flu," and was a patient at the Catawba Sanitorium for more than a year, but to no avail he returned to his home last May and was tenderly nursed, but the dreadful disease continued to progress. He was a member of Liberty Chapel Church from early boyhood. He leaves to mourn their loss, his widow, Mrs. Helen Barlow Gunter and one daughter, Francis, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gunter and the following brothers and sisters, W. H. Gunter, of Lynchburg, S. T. Gunter, of Roanoke, John W. Gunter, of Vera, Mrs. F. S. Thornhill, Misses Julia, Bessie, and Thelma Gunter, of Vera. He was laid to rest in the family cemetery beside his brother, Edward B., who fell on Flander's Field during the World War. Rev. S. B. Tucker conducted the funeral service very impressively. The music was sweetly and softly rendered. The following active pall-bearers were: J. W. Scruggs, M. L. Garrett, Tom Moore, R. E. Meginson, Ernest Mann, J'm Childress, J. J. Chernault and Percy Garrett. The flower-bearers were, Ruth Crouch, Violet Nuitycombe, Mrs. Lillian Hatcher, Florence Grow, Louise Scruggs, Lucille Childress, and Doris Barlow.

ALZONA MOORE

This splendid cidizen, after an affliction of sixteen years which confined him to his home and which was accompanied by great suffering passed to his reward Sunday. Deceased was 67 years of age and was reared in this county, where he had many relatives and a wide circle of friends. Alzona Moore was a faithful member of Mt. Comfort Methodist church and enjoyed his church relations. He was faithful in his trust and never complained of his dreadful suffering and affliction, which was the result of rheumatism.

He is survived by his wife and four sons—Milton, Conrad, Mundy and Hubbard Moore. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. J. Clark and the interment was made Monday at the home of H. G. Harding in the family burying ground. A noble, fearless son of Appomattox has answered the last roll call.

Find Tree Stump in Process of Petrification

Bethany, Mo.—Workmen with a railroad construction crew from St. Joseph, working on the Burlington railroad right of way near this city, unearthed a red oak stump in the process of petrification. The stump, which measured about two and one-half feet through, is believed to have been buried in the fill for almost fifty years, or ever since the railroad was built. Its removal required four days. It showed no signs of decay and was so tough it could not be split with an ax.

PASTORS' CHILDREN TO HONOR PARENTS

Memorial Takes Form of Tuberculosis Sanatorium.

Chicago.—"Silver keys to golden memories." In these five words are epitomized a national movement, with its headquarters here, which has as its objectives:

Creation of a sunshiny, life and health-giving memorial to the spirits of thousands of America's best-loved men and women, and

A lasting and complete refutation of the old theory that the majority of ministers' children are ne'er-do-wells.

The "golden memories" are those which all of us treasure of the kindly ministrations, the heart-felt sympathies and the helping hands extended to us in times of stress by pastors or our acquaintances.

The "silver keys" are that are pouring into the Methodist Ministers' Sons' and Daughters' association, for the memorial which that organization has planned and on which construction is expected early this year.

Plan Great Sanatorium.

That memorial is to be the Methodist Ministers' Memorial sanatorium at Colorado Springs, Colo. It is planned as the principal unit of the National Methodist Episcopal Sanatorium for Tuberculosis—a project embracing almost a million dollars in buildings and equipment.

"Our unit," says Rev. J. W. Irish, D. D., executive secretary of the association, "will cost about $300,000 and will afford us—the sons and daughters of Methodist ministers—an opportunity not only to honor our fathers and mothers, but also to assist in caring for the more than a million persons in America who are afflicted with this dread disease. The service will be nonsectarian and will be provided without cost to those who are unable to pay the cost of their fights for health.

Doctor Irish added that probably no movement in the history of Methodism ever has struck such a popular chord of appeal and that the success of the venture is assured. In his offices at 740 Rush street, he already has the names and addresses of 10,000 sons and daughters of Methodist ministers.

"Our greatest concern now," he continued, "is that of obtaining as nearly as possible a complete list of the sons and daughters of Methodist ministers and their wives. The opportunity which our association affords these folks of memorializing their parents is such that we have issued a general appeal to the public everywhere to send us names and addresses of any known sons or daughters of our pastors.

"So great is the interest in our activity that the Chamber of Commerce of Colorado Springs donated 28 acres of land within the city limits for the location of our buildings. The site adjoins that of Beth-El General hospital, nationally known for its achievements in surgical and general medical treatment.

"One unit of our sanatorium, a heating plant and laundry large enough to provide for future expansion, already have been erected on our site."

Ministers' Sons Rank High.

Development of the hospital memorial to children of preachers, has brought to light an almost startling array of prominent personages who were the sons or daughters of ministers.

John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence, was a preacher's son, as were eight others who signed that document. One of every nine of the Presidents of the United States have been ministers' sons, while in one of every four administrations, America's Presidents had daughters of ministers as the nation's first lady."

One of every five persons in the Hall of Fame in New York city is the son or daughter of a preacher.

In the industrial field, in science, literature and the arts, many of the outstanding names are those of
